McAdoo 400 Votes Smith Only 300

Reconciliation of all Claims Indicate New Yorker is Far Behind McAdoo in Delegates to Democratic National Convention.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 16.—William G. McAdoo will have in excess of four hundred votes on the first ballot in the Democratic national convention here next week, Governor Smith will have nearly 300, and the balance will be scattered among dark horses. There represents today a reconciliation of all the claims, some of them conflicting made by the McAdoo and Smith leaders, together with the known statistics on instruction which some delegates have received from their state conventions or in their state primaries.

McAdoo Leaders Claim 550.

Some of the McAdoo leaders claim that his initial strength will be considerably in excess of the four hundred. Some of the more enthusiastic claim even that he will poll a majority of the convention—550—on the first ballot, but these claims do not stand up in comparison with the known strength of McAdoo's numerous rivals.

The whole story of the convention, in the opinion of most unprejudiced observers, lies in the ability of McAdoo to hold his strength and increase it after the early balloting. The managers of the McAdoo campaign, who have been working industriously in every state in the union for more than a year now, are confident that the initial strength can be held, and increased.

And here is where McAdoo managers and the managers of other candidacies part company.

May Abrogate Two-thirds Rule.

The anti-McAdoo forces concede without argument that he will lead the early balloting and many of them concede that he may at one time or another poll a majority of the 1,096 delegates. But they give him no more. The strength of the forces opposed to McAdoo, they claim, can never be drawn to the McAdoo banner, and these forces constitute more than one-third of the convention. They have counted noses and are supremely confident. Where then, they ask, is McAdoo going to get the votes unless the two-thirds rule is abrogated?

That the McAdoo leaders are cognizant of this is seen from a revival of the talk here about abrogating the time honored two-thirds rule. But it is regarded as exceedingly doubtful that the rule will be changed.

The anti-McAdoo forces are not merely content with predicting that McAdoo will not be nominated. They go further and contend that the strength which the ex-treasury head will poll on the first five ballots will be his greatest strength. In substantiation of this, they point out that a good many of McAdoo's delegates are instructed for him on the first ballot, but that these same instructions do not carry beyond this point. They see some McAdoo strength slipping away to other candidates after the delegates have fulfilled their instructions.

Believe McAdoo Will Gain.

The McAdoo managers reply to this argument that the delegates so lost will be more than compensated for by the accessions to the McAdoo strength from still other delegations who are pledged to a favorite son on the first ballot. They cite Wyoming as a typical case in this connection. The delegates from that state were instructed by their state convention to vote on the first ballot for Senator John B. Kendrick. After the complimentary vote for Kendrick, the McAdoo managers claim the delegation. There are other states where similar conditions prevail, they say.

McAdoo managers claim the twenty-six delegates from Iowa. They were not instructed by the state convention, although McAdoo men dominated that convention. Iowans who are opposed to McAdoo declare the delegation probably will vote for McAdoo on the first ballot and thereafter pursue their individual ways. And this condition, they contend, prevails in other states which the McAdoo managers are claiming as rock-ribbed McAdoo strongholds.

Uninstructed Hold Balance of Power.

There will be nearly 500 delegates in the convention, representing 21 states and territories, who will be unhampered by instructions or pledges, so far as the delegations as a whole are concerned.

These, it appears, hold the balance of power, and in the long run will determine the issue.

Ellenville Faces A Water Famine

Clay Bank Slides Into Main Supply Making Water Unfit—Engineers Consulting and Public Meeting May be Called.

The village of Ellenville faces a very serious water shortage in the immediate future on account of one of the main supplies being unfit for use through a recent clay slide.

The water supply of Ellenville is taken from streams fed by springs on the mountains to the east of the village. Some time ago a slide in one of the deep ravines through which the water flows on its way to one of the reservoirs opened up a huge clay bank. The numerous rains of the spring have caused the clay to wash down into the stream until there are hundreds of tons of yellow clay blocking up the ravine through which the stream flows on its way to the storage reservoir. For some time the water has been so roily that it has been unfit for use even for washing purposes and it has been allowed to run away.

A second stream and smaller supply is now being used to supply the village and by reason of the exceptionally wet weather this stream has been sufficient to supply the demand, but should the weather become dryer during the summer months the village will suffer from a water famine unless some method is found to provide additional supply. Engineers have been called in consultation to solve the problem. It will be necessary to check the flow of clay or divert the stream before the pure mountain water can again be used.

A public meeting may be called to discuss the problem and devise some means of getting an additional supply of water in time to prevent a water famine during the hot dry summer months.

No News From 17 Racing Balloons

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Brussels, June 16.—Up to 3 o'clock today nothing had been heard from any of the 17 balloons which started late yesterday in the race for the James Gordon Bennett Cup.

The wind was from the west when the race began and it is expected that the first news of them will come from Germany, Denmark or Poland.

Last word of the balloons was received from Charleroix at dusk Sunday night. Observers there reported seeing seven of the balloons high in the sky.

There are three American entries and many experts picked one of the United States balloons to win the cup. The real favorite, however, was Lt. Ernest De Muyter, pilot of the Belgica. He has won two contests for the cup and a third successive victory will give Belgium permanent possession of the trophy.

DR. BARTHOLOW AT EPWORTH HALL FRIDAY.

At a late hour Sunday night arrangements were completed for what is believd to be the most interesting speaker for Sunday school workers in the state of New York. Dr. O. F. Bartholow, D. D., of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., has the honor of teaching the largest men's Bible class in the world. Seventeen hundred of Mt. Vernon's men are members of the class and more than eight hundred women come out on Wednesday afternoon, giving him a combined class of 2,500.

The Winners Sunday school class of Clinton Avenue M. E. Church had planned to have Dr. Bartholow here for a men's banquet on Friday evening of this week, but the men found there was such a widespread desire on the part of the people, not only of Clinton Avenue, but other churches as well, to hear Dr. Bartholow that they have cancelled all banquet arrangements and will now start out on the unpleasant task of returning many tickets to the purchasers. Dr. Bartholow will come here on Friday of this week, June 20, and the doors of Epworth Hall will be thrown open and all will be made welcome.

Fired Guns "To Get Rid of Shells"

William Van Steenburgh to be Examined as to Sanity—Frightened Wife and Neighbors—Entertains City Hall Visitors With Song and Jest.

Police headquarters received an early morning call today from Mrs. William Van Steenburgh of No. 134 Third avenue, who wanted her husband arrested.

"What's the trouble with him?" asked Sergeant Phinney.

"To tell the truth, I think he is crazy," was the reply.

She was advised to see Judge Harry E. Schirick and obtain a warrant.

Later in the morning police headquarters received a hurry call from Third avenue stating that Van Steenburgh was out in the street firing off revolvers and guns.

Officers Fatum and Entrott were rushed to the scene and placed him under arrest and brought him to police headquarters. When they questioned William as to why he was discharging his guns and revolvers in the street, he replied, "I just wanted to get rid of the shells."

At police headquarters while waiting arraignment before Judge Schirick, the prisoner entertained with songs and jests.

So peculiar was his behavior and actions that Judge Schirick fixed bail at $2,500 and remanded him to the county jail to have him examined as to his sanity. The bail was fixed sufficiently high so that no one would be likely to furnish it as it was not considered safe to allow Van Steenburgh at large.

Warren Resigns As Ambassador

Chairman of Republican Convention's Platform Committee Seeks to be Relieved of Duties in Mexico.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 16.—Charles Beecher Warren, United States Ambassador to Mexico, has tendered his resignation to President Coolidge, effective July 1, it was learned here today.

Drafted into the American diplomatic service by the late President Harding, Warren served with distinction as Ambassador to Japan, resigning a year ago to return to private life.

When definite steps were undertaken by Secretary of State Hughes to enter into certain agreements with Mexico, preparatory to the establishment of diplomatic relations with the Obregon government, Warren was recalled to public service and sent to Mexico City with Judge John Barton Payne to draft these agreements for the adjudication of claims between Mexico and the United States.

Again he returned to private life and again he was recalled, this time by President Coolidge, to be the first American Ambassador to Mexico since the beginning of the revolutionary troubles several years ago.

Recently Mr. Coolidge picked Warren as chairman of the committee which wrote the Republican platform at the Cleveland convention.

In political circles here today it was widely reported that Warren's resignation at this time was a direct result of the ill feeling engendered at the convention by the conflicting factions in the Republican convention. Officially, however, Warren's resignation wa sbased on his desire to again return to private life and to look after his personal business affairs.

Warren will return to Mexico City to wind up the affairs and will then return to Detroit, his home.

President Coolidge has not yet accepted Ambassador Warren's resignation and it was said at the White House today that an effort might be made to get him to remain in the diplomatic service.

New Party Threat to Nominate Man Who Spurned It

La Follette Warned Followers Against Farmer - Labor—Progressive Party Which Now Threatens to Nominate Him For President.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

St. Paul, Minn., June 16—"La Follette is our man."

William H. Mahony, St. Paul, leader of this "farmer-labor-progressive" third party convention, which opens a three day session here tomorrow, thus replied today to the stinging rebuke administered to the convention recently by Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, who warned all progressives not to have anything to do with the meeting because of its communistic affiliations.

"There is keen resentment here because of La Follette's letter, but we are not wielding our axes and we are going to endorse him for the presidency," said Mahoney.

Because of the carefully laid plans, there is little chance that anything but perfunctory, oratorical anger will burst forth, so determined are the leaders to endorse La Follette.

Even Communists Demand La Follette.

Even the communists, headed by C. E. Ruthenberg, and W. Z. Foster, of the Workers' Party, and Joseph Manley, executive secretary of the Federated Farm-Labor party, who are sitting in at all the conferences arranging the convention plans, have been placated. The soberer heads fixed that, laying down the law that it must be La Follette.

"There is on one else to whom we can turn," said Mahoney. "He is the only man in America who can wage a successful campaign against the weaklings of wealth who are supported by the old parties."

Mahoney admitted that the communists have a share in the convention as LaFollette charged.

"But they have only a proportionate representation of ten delegates out of 971 that we expected", he added. Ruthenberg, Manley and Foster have attended every conference held thus far, taking prominent part.

May Endorse, Not Nominate.

All the plans are going ahead just as if La Follette were here, whole heartedly endorsing the convention and seeking the nomination. He dominates every plan, every conference. So confident are the leaders that he is going to run as independent that they are even not planning to get in touch with him until the convention has given its endorsement.

"We are not going to nominate La Follette," explained Mahoney. "But we plan to endorse him. We don't want to give him a chance to refuse the nomination."

The managers, here, a mere handful of whom are running the convention, confidentially believe that La Follette will formally announce his candidacy after the Democratic convention in New York. They feel, also, that he will receive endorsement of the Conference for Progressive Political Action, meeting in Cleveland July 4.

Knew He Could Kick Them.

That conference is blamed by Mahoney for La Follette's letter.

"In the beginning," said Mahoney, who is in charge of all arrangements, "we thought that La Follette was with us. I had a conference with him in Chicago and came away with the distinct impression that he wanted our support.

"His denunciation was like a bolt from a clear sky. La Follette says himself that he not a radical, that he is no distant dreamer but the thing the people need at the time. But he is the greatest magnate that the radicals in this country have.

"It was good politics for him to slap us in the face. He knew he could slap us and still get our votes. He knew that our purpose is to unite all discordant Progressive factions, not to split them. He knew we could not put up anybody else and get any votes.

Attacks Federation and Brotherhood.

"By slapping us but not alienating our support he knew he could win the American Federation of Labor and the Big Four Brotherhoods which are trying to kill off third party movements for their own selfish gains.

"The Federation is a great political body spending millions of dollars lobbying in Washington and it wants to be left alone. The Brotherhoods were afraid our convention would eclipse theirs. So they both went to La Follette and got him to attack us."

Considering Democratic Candidates.

The convention opening tomorrow is even more cut and dried than the foregone Coolidge nomination at Cleveland. Only the talking remains.

There is to be a keynote speech by Mahoney, in which he will denounce La Follette and with the same breath urge his endorsement. There are committees on platform, rules, organization and so forth, but the same personnel, including the communists, is on all of them.

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, and Representative Huddleston, Democrat, Albama, are being most seriously mentioned for the vice-presidential endorsement.

Slept in Doorway Far From Home

Edward McElmeel of Pine Street Blocked Entrance to Broadway Apartments Until Removed by Officer Burger — Other Cases in Police Court.

Sunday evening about 11:50 o'clock Officer Burger removed Edward McElmeel of No. 164 Pine street from the doorway of a Broadway apartment. Edward was drunk and had fallen asleep in the doorway and the occupants of the building were unable to enter or leave without climbing over Edward's recumbent figure. As this was Edward's second appearance in police court in the past two months Judge Schirick imposed a fine of $10 this morning which was paid.

Raymond McAndrew, arrested for parking in the restricted area on Wall street, explained that he was busy placing parcels to be delivered in his car and did not realize he was in the restricted area. His explanation was satisfactory and he was discharged.

John Bartow, a tourist, picked up for loitering about Grand street early Sunday morning, was given an hour to leave the city.

John Straub Is Forgetful Man

Police Have Busy Time Hunting Man Who Was Released on Bail After Wife Arrested Him.

Saturday evening John Straub was arrested by his wife and turned over to Officer Roedell on a charge of assault in the third degree. Later in the evening he was able to furnish bail in the sum of $300 for his appearance today before Judge Schirick.

When the case was called John was not in court. Police headquarters about the same time received a telephone call that John, apparently drunk, was sitting in a doorway on Hasbrouck avenue. The police car was sent after him, but he had disappeared. The search was continued and John finally located. He had forgotten all about appearing in police court.

When arraigned before Judge Schirick he said he would like the hearing adjourned for two days to get a lawyer. Judge Schirick fixed bail at $1,500, and John, unable to furnish it, was remanded to the county jail until the adjourned day.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

The count's plight was revealed today by his friend, Mlle. Lyla De Putti, beautiful Hungarian moving picture actress. It is understood that the count wishes to follow his bride of six months to the United States, but is prevented by temporary financial embarrassment.

"When he arrived in Berlin, Count Salm had money, but he spent it," said Mlle. De Putti. "He first told me that he did not accompany the countess when she went to New York with her father five weeks ago because he wanted to remain in Europe to play tennis in the Olympic eliminations."

Follow Killing With Suicide

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., June 16.—Creeping up to the window of a cottage in which two men and their wives were playing cards early today, William Shields, address unknown, fired a fusillade into the room, killing one man and one woman and wounding the latter's husband. Shields then ran 100 yards from the place and shot himself fatally.

The dead: Mrs. Estella Erban, 27, and William Shields.

Otto Erban, husband of the dead woman, is shot through the right shoulder.

The shooting occurred at the cottage of Edward Erban.

Shields died later.

He blamed the Erbans for domestic trouble in his family which caused his wife to leave him and seek a divorce, Otto Erban said.

Young Divorcee Suicide by Gas

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 16.—Police today are investigating the death by gas of Mrs. M. Martin, pretty twenty-two year old divorcee, who committed suicide in her lavishly decorated apartment in Greenwich Village.

When police forced the door of her suite, they found Mrs. Martin seated in a chair in the kitchenette, dead. On a table nearby was a Bible.

She had left a note to her mother, Mrs. Fred Rueggerberg of Patterson, N. J., saying she was tired of life and hoped to find rest where she was going. Police are checking up her acquaintances, seeking other possible causes for other death.

Mrs. Martin, known to her friends as "Peggy," had been employed as secretary to Morris Hillquit, widely known lawyer and Socialist. Hillquit said she had been in poor health for several months.

In her purse were found diamond rings and a decree of divorce from Frederick A. Martin, granted in Okmulgee county, Oklahoma, "for gross neglect of duty, extreme cruelty."

New Instruments for Degeneracy

They Measure Mental Disturbances and Will Be Used in Trial of Chicago Slayers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 16—Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., slayers of Robert Franks, 13, are abnormal, according to preliminary reports of the first of several experts to test the youths at the county jail. They should not hang, is the opinion of these experts, which will be the ground work on which the defense will build.

Loeb and Leopold are sane and normal, according to experts called by the state's attorney, who had the precocious University of Chicago students examined before they were removed from his custody on habeas corpus writs.

Expert against expert will provide the trial's drama and determine whether the youths shall face life terms in hospital for the criminal insane, terms only long enough to cure mental quirks, or the hangman's noose.

Dr. Karl Bowman, Boston psychiatrist and ductless gland expert, probably will be the first defense witness and will present his findings from the exhaustive tests he made on the boys at the county jail.

Instruments with as strange names as the phrases which the trial will make current have been used in the tests, which continued today. The metabolimeter, which measures oxygen consumption through re-breathing process and determines the action of certain glands, has had its inning; today the plethysmograph will be brought. It measures mental disturbances as a seismograph records earth disturbances. Loeb has accepted the facts with good nature. Peopold, the egocentric, resents being made laughable in the eyes of the public.

"I would infer from reading the newspapers that Loeb and I are being trained like fleas to jump through hoops for the entertainment of the curious."

Loeb is concerned with his fate, Leopold is concerned with what people will think of him.

Seek Motive in Brennan Slaying

"Big Bill" Brennan Called From Cabaret and Killed—Was Formidable Contender Among Heavy-Weight Title Seekers.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 16.—With Frank Rossi and James Hughes under arrest, police today were trying to find a motive for the slaying of "Big Bill" Brennan, well known pugilist, who twice fought Jack Dempsey. Brennan was called from his restaurant, the Club Tiajuana, on upper Broadway, early Sunday morning and shot to death without warning.

James Cullen, formerly a state trooper attached to the White Plains barracks, was shot in the neck when he pursued Brennan's slayers. He died this morning in the hospital.

Brennan was shot twice through the body. He died in the hospital without regaining consciousness. He was sitting at a table, chatting with his sister, Shirley Brennan, a singer, in the restaurant, when he was called outside and slain.

Brennan was one of two men who have stayed in the ring with Dempsey for more than ten rounds. He was considered one of the most formidable of the heavyweight title seekers when he retired from the ring a few months ago.

Both of the alleged slayers have long criminal records, police say. Hughes formerly fought Terry O'Neill, a light-weight.

The slaying is shrouded in mystery, but police are inclined to think the trouble involved bootlegging. A barrel of empty whiskey bottles was found in the cabaret, according to police.

Rossi and Hughes were captured in a taxi at gun point, a block and a half from Brennan's restaurant. Police say they escaped from the club after kicking through a plate glass panel in a door which leads from a side entrance to Broadway.

The suspects stubbornly refuse to talk. Brennan, just after he was shot, told his sister he did not know them. Some of the restaurant employes said they recognized the men as a pair Brennan had put out of the place earlier in the evening for alleged insulting remarks to some women patrons.

Police were combing the underworld today and questioning many of its denizens in an effort to find a motive for the murder.

Brennan was known as "the fighter without an enemy" and his proverbial good nature out of the ring made the search for the motive difficult.

Seize $2,500,000 Smuggled Drugs

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 16.—Special agents of the United States treasury department reported today the seizure in Hoboken on Saturday of a truck laden with $2,500,000 worth of opium and opium derivatives—the largest drug seizure ever made in this country, they declared.

Abraham Palowitz, said to head the American division of an international drug syndicate, and Otto Anderson, 702 East 138th street, were arrested on a charge of smuggling.

The arrests were the result of investigations in progress for the last two years. According to the authorities, the syndicate had its world headquarters in Germany.

The drugs were taken from a truck owned by Palowitz and driven by Anderson, just as it was leaving a pier, and were carried in cases marked "brushes."

According to the special agents, the syndicate has been successful in dumping large quantities of narcotics into the United States chiefly through Palowitz who it is charged drives away from the dock with his consignment of "brushes" and en-route to Brooklyn, unloads the boxes and substitutes others, bearing identical marks, but containing nothing. These were later sent to Trinidad where they were refused by the consignee and returned to Germany marked "returned German goods."

The finding of special agents sent to Germany were so important, it was disclosed, that the papers were sent to Washington by courier from Germany.

Todays' haul consisted of five thousand "brushes" as marked, but in their handles were found, in the aggregate, 500 pounds of opium, 800 ounces of cocaine, 2,000 ounces of morphine and 1,000 pounds of heroin.

Wage Increases 1913 to 1922

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 16.—Labor wage statistics officially compiled and printed in the U. S. Statistical Abstract for 1922 show that the percentage increases in listed occupations, over 1913, ranged from 57 in the case of marble setters to 167 in the case of bakers. The rate of wages per hour (Union) covering all occupations, and comparing 1922 with 1913 shows an average increase of 93 per cent.

Railroad Wages.

The average compensation of railroad employes in 1913 was $757 annually, the total in wages paid out that year being $1,374,000,000, in round numbers. The average for 1922 was $1,622, the total paid out being $2,669,000,000. The wage increase in this industry recorded 114 per cent over pre-war days.

Average Factory Wage.

Nearly 278,000 manufacturing establishments in 1914 employed about 7,000,000 hands, and paid out $4,078,000,000 in wages, or an average per hand of $580. About 250,000 establishments in 1921, employing slightly under 7,000,000 hands, paid out in wages the sum of about $8,250,000,000, or an average per man of $1,180 or an increase in wages per man in manufacturing industries of a little over 100 per cent.

For Farm and Harvest.

The average wages of hired farm labor throughout the country by the month, in 1913, was, with board, $21.38; without board $30.31. In 1922 the wages were $29.17 and $41.79, respectively. Per harvest day the figures in 1913 were, with board $1.57, without board $1.94; and in 1922 they were $2.20 and $2.72.

The highest rates, and the largest increases were in the Far Western Division, where, in 1922 wages per month without board were $66.03, and per harvset day without board, $3.56.

Labor and Distribution.

It has been frequently stated, after an analysis of cost items, that labor accounts for from 60 to 75 per cent of the cost of production in the manufacturing of goods. According to the above statistics more than $4,000,000,000 has been added to the wage scale since pre-war days, while $2,300,000,000 has been added to the cost of distributing products of all sorts through increased wages to railroad hands.

After-War Wages Bigger.

The farmer has to pay wages, on the average, 40 per cent higher than in pre-war days, and he has a good deal of trouble getting labor at $66 a month, or $3.56 a day in harvest season, because of the attraction of higher wages in the manufacturing centers.

United States and Europe.

The disparity in wage scales, comparing the United States with Europe, is far greater today than in pre-war days. For example, the ratio was about 2 to 1, the American compared with the British wage, before the war. Assuming that wages in both countries have increased 100 per cent, or doubled, for every $2 the British manufacturer pays out in wages today, the American manufacturer pays $4. This is reflected in the fact that imports of manufactures during 1923 were 100 per cent greater than in 1914, notwithstanding the protective tariff law was in effect in 1923, while the Democratic tariff was operative nine months of 1914 (fiscal year).

Democratic Tariff Disastrous.

The Republican party has no desire to see wages reduced, and it hopes to see improved methods of manufacture and distribution ultimately reflected in lower prices. That is gradually coming about. But a return to Democratic tariff laws would wreck the entire industrial fabric and ruin the farmer's domestic market.

Deaths Decrease In Industries

Construction Operations Established New High Record for Year in May —Falls Caused 31 Deaths.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, June 16.—Industrial accidents causing the death of three women and 127 men were reported to the State Labor Department during May, according to a statement issued today by Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag. "The ages of these workers," he added, "ranged from 16 to 82 years, while two-thirds of all of them were over 35." Five boys under 21 lost their lives in this manner. Seven men over 70 years of age were among the 130 industrial deaths.

There has been a marked decline in the deaths reported. With the exception of the month of February, when there were 121 industrial fatalities, this was the smallest number reported since the tabulation of this information was begun in October, 1923.

Commissioner Shientag called attention to the significant decreases in the number of deaths in the following industries: Transportation, metals, chemicals and textiles. He was of the opinion that these were probably following the decline in employment.

A marked exception to this decrease was found in construction operations which established a new high record for the year. Ordinarily almost all of the fatalities reported for this industry come from New York city. During May, however, all of the compensation districts showed a greater number of fatalities in construction work.

"Although vehicular accidents have always played a very important part as a cause of death, the month of May had the smallest number of deaths reported for this cause since last October. This," he added, "is extremely comforting inasmuch as the decline was due almost solely to the fact that only two deaths to industrial workers were caused by automobiles."

Falls of persons took a toll of 31 lives, 12 of them being due to falling or slipping on level surfaces.

Violence was the cause of death in two holdups.

Beware of Civil Service "Schools"

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, D. C., June 16.—The United States Civil Service Commission and the National Vigilance Committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World today issued a joint warning against misleading advertising of many so-called civil-service coaching schools. The following points are emphasized:

(1) No school of this kind has any connection whatever with the Civil Service Commission or with any other branch of the government.

(2) No school can give advance information regarding examination questions.

(3) No school can furnish civil-service information of value which can not be obtained without cost from the Civil Service Commission at Washington or its representative at the post office or customhouse in any of approximately 3,500 cities.

(4) No school can "guarantee" appointment in the classified civil service. Appointment can be secured only through open competitive examination under the civil-service rules. No school can cause a competitor to be certified for appointment out of the regular order, as determined by his examination rating.

The Civil Service Commission states that large numbers of applications for examination received at its office indicate that many civil-service schools accept as clients and take money from practically illiterate persons who could not possibly pass any kind of examination.

E. I. McKinley, deputy-labor commissioner of Arkansas, it is said in the joint warning, recently has investigated correspondence schools of this class and authorizes the statement that he has concluded that the majority of them come as near being "fakes" as the postal laws permit. The "schools" that Mr. McKinley condemns are the ones that offer to qualify persons for civil-service positions or make a professional man of a laborer in a few weeks. Mr. McKinley says that schools which prepare for civil-service examinations rank second to "detective schools" in number.

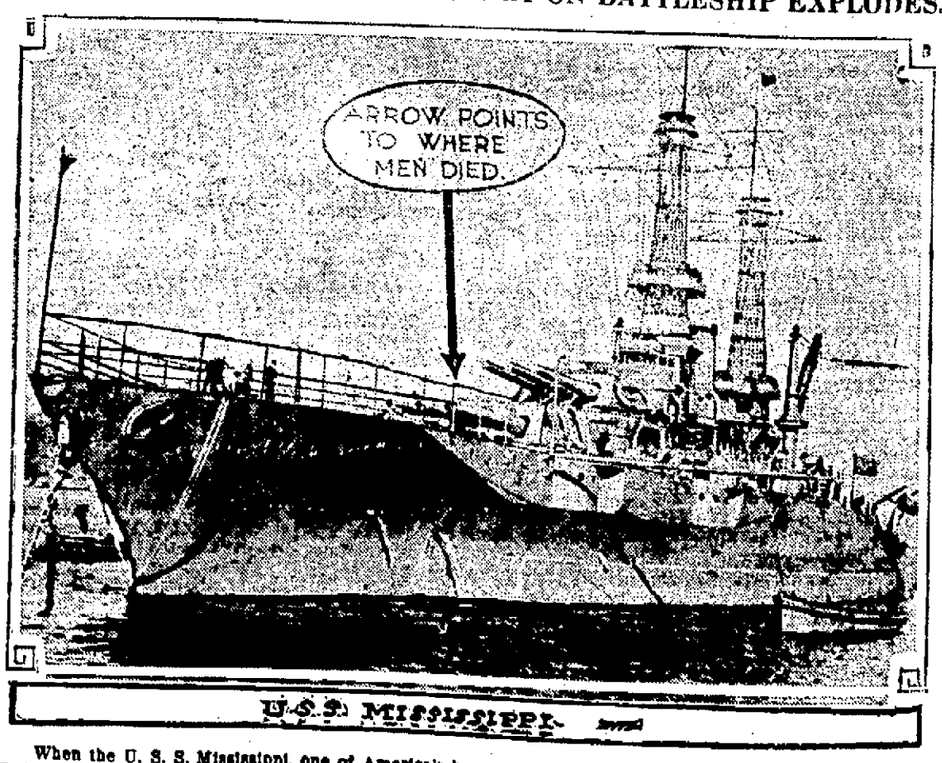
TWO SCORE DIE WHEN GUN TURRET ON BATTLESHIP EXPLODES.



When the U. S. S. Mississippi, one of America's best superdreadnaughts, was at target practice off San Pedro, Cal., gun turret No. 2 blew up, killing the gun crew and two score others. Total fatalities were 3 officers and 41 men. Another score of navy men were injured by the blast. The Mississippi is one of the 18 capital ships retained by the U. S. Navy under the American plan for limitation of armament.

AMERICANS SHOW GROWING INTEREST IN TRUE THRIFT

By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift

It is well that the subject of hrift be kept constantly before e public.

This does not mean that there hould be a continual exhortaon to save money. What it oes mean is that too much genral attention cannot be given to ethods of wise pending, economy, fficiency and elimnation of waste, s well as sensible aving. To this nd a conference oon will be held in Washington f representatives f various groups nd organizations nterested in thrift.

A little less than ne years ago a conference was eld on the grounds of the Panma-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco. The meeting which as called the International Conress for Thrift, resulted in the ormation of plans for the introduction of thrift teachings in he schools of America Today housands of our boys and girls re being given class-room instructions on thrift as the direct esult of that conference. The ood thus accomplished has been eyond calculation.

Teach thrift Talk thrift. Preach thrift But let it be the hrift of progress and upbuilding, not the so-called thrift of varice and selfishness. The correct use of time, energy, thought and money are vastly more important than the mere function of saving money. To be thrifty is to thrive in the truest and most comprehensive sense.

We are assured that the pending Washington conference will seek to find means by which various important organizations can co-operate to the end of encouraging thrift of this kind. The serious consideration of these matters by a group of public spirited men and women actuated by sincere aspirations will result in a tremendous impetus to thrift education in America

This conference will, for these reasons, be the most important event of the kind since the intensive thrift activities of war days.

The very fact that so many groups and individuals are vitally interested in this conference is an inspiring proof that there is a great public thrift impulse in America. Prior to 1914 an effort to hold a serious and important nation-wide conference on thrift would have been futile

America is learning the importance of intelligent thrift!

ELLIS ISLAND

Ellis Island, in New York bay, near he Statue of Liberty, is the chief nding place provided by Uncle Sam or immigrants. Through it passes the nstant stream of foreign-born which ows America-ward and from which ey scatter to the four winds.

Formerly known both as Oyster d Gibbet island, it was acquired by e national government from the tate of New York in 1808 and became f leading immigration station in 91.

After leaving quarantine immigrants re landed on barges which are towed Ellis Island. As the immigrants nd they are formed into lines and le past the inspectors who "size hem up" to discover if there is any eason why they should not be permitted to enter America. They are reviewed by doctors and examined by nspectors and vice investigators eet, legs, hands, arms, body, face, yes, head, are gone over. They are arefully scanned for skin, communiable and eye diseases

If found to be O. K in every way, mmigrants are permitted to pass, purhase tickets to destination, their oney exchanged for its equivalent in ur currency and given assistance in ocating friends or relatives. Otherise, they are held for further inestigation and developments and nally passed or returned to the coun- ry from which they came, as conditions warrant.

The majority of these newcomers o straight-away to the big cities—hree-fourths of them, it is said, to he territory east of the Mississippi iver and north of the Ohio river.

Ellis Island is intensely interesting Amusing and pathetic incidents occur daily. All immigrants approach it in fear and trembling lest they prove unfit to enter. To nearly all of them our language and customs are unknown, hence they do not understand what it is all about. 'Tis said that more tears have been shed here than any other place in the world. Many cry for joy over permission to enter, others because they are refused or because a family is separated, maybe for life, one member being unfit.

Uncle Sam's entrance laws are rigid —not that he wishes to keep out desirables, but because of the imperative necessity of preventing undesirables from entering. As many as 5,000 immigrants have passed through Ellis Island in a single day, and more than a million have entered during a single year.

Found Treasure Where Thrown Brick Landed

An ancient Sumerian library of cuneiform tablets has been found by the simple expedient of throwing a brick on a spot on the side of a hill under which the library has lain hidden for centuries. The discovery was made by Professor Langdon, the American-born Oxford assyriologist, who is directing the Weld-Bruncell expedition excavations at the ruins of the Babylonian city of Kish, near Bagdad

The discovery of the library occurred just in time to stop the preparations for the suspension of the excavating work, for it was the opinion of the leaders of the expedition that the library had been destroyed with other missing sections of the city.

"I was convinced," said Professor Langdon in writing of the discovery, "that if still existing a certain library lay on the western side of a certain mound and I dug there vainly for weeks. The idea that the library was there disturbed my mind and even haunted my sleep. In despair, and grasping a chance of divination, I went alone to the top of the mound and chose a brick of the age of Nebuchadnezzar which lay at my feet, and marked on it an arrow Then, after blindfolding myself and turning round many times to lose my bearings, I threw the brick backward over my head.

"The next morning digging was recommenced at the place indicated by the arrow, and within two hours a large nest of valuable literary tablets was found."

The library is by far the most important find the expedition has made during its three years' work. It is expected to yield literary treasures which even the libraries of the Pharaohs have not contained. Already 20 rooms of the library have been uncovered, all of which are filled with tablets, and there are 20 more rooms yet to be explored.

Kish is the oldest capital of ancient Babylon, and was founded immediately after the flood The excavated ruins show the city to have been five miles long and four miles wide and it is here that the oldest known kings of history lived. Much is known of the history of the city from other sources, but the story of its birth and prosperity still have to be found in the ancient records.

He Looked Ahead

An aged man in an interurban car near Dunreith glanced out of the car window at a clump of new trees and, growing reminiscent, said:

"When I was a youngster, mother told me that the back eighty acres would be mine some day. I thought that if it was going to be mine I'd do something for it. I gathered two bushels of fine walnuts one day and, taking them to the eighty, planted them all over the farm—wherever I thought they would be able to grow without future molestation

"Fifty years later, when the farm was sold, the walnut timber on that farm brought me as much as the land itself."

All of which goes to show that reforestation may be more profitable than is indicated by the oriental proverb, which, viewing it from a slow-growth angle, runs:

"He who planteth a tree loveth others than himself."—Indianapolis News.

Coat and Wrap in Chic Combination

Ensemble Costume Is One of Paris' Popular Outfits for Summer Wear.

A very becoming and practical costume has lately arrived which is capable of sufficient variations and combinations of color and material to give it a lasting place in our affections. It is called the "Ensemble Costume," and consists of a frock and coat which, worn separately, retain their individuality, while achieving when worn together a real affinity. They say in Paris, observes a fashion writer in the Milwaukee Sentinel, this vogue has attained such proportions that even the little frocks for summer have their accompanying coat or wrap; in this country, however, we confine this ensemble to the street costume, which is equally successful with or without its coat.

An attractive design is a coat of black satin of the popular seven-eighths length, cut on the most severely simple lines and lined with printed crepe in black and white The bottom of the coat has a deep band of the black satin, the frock combines these two materials just as successfully. A long beltless blouse of the printed crepe is banded at the bottom with the satin, this must be carefully measured so that the banding on coat and dress meet at the correct place. The sleeves of this frock should be long and well fitted, the neckline may be V or bateau shaped, and narrow ties of crepe may tie at each side of the waistline if you desire to soften a bit the altogether beltless effect. We suggest having the coat of this costume made by a reliable tailoring establishment in order to achieve the correct lines The dress is simple enough to be copied at home by a sewing woman.

Another design consists of a straight sleeveless frock of crepe, which is tucked from shoulder to hem; it has a narrow belt across the back, which gives slight emphasis to the waistline A tiny white linen collar and the bottom of the skirt are edged with narrow red lace. The accompanying coat is of the same shade as the gown but of slightly heavier material; it is straight and narrow, fitted in slightly at the waist; the red leather belt and the smart little collar of the frock, worn outside, lend it distinction

A costume would be especially smart of blue bengaline combined with blue crepe de chine of the same shade The coat, of three-quarter length fastens at the collar and hangs straight or may be held in place The cuffs and collar are finished with narrow stuffed rolls of the material the whole lined with white crepe de chine The dress is a tunic model, with a round neckline, tiny collar, and long sleeves The front of the tunic and the sleeves are finished with round crystal buttons This simple coat and frock may easily be made by one's own sewing woman

A costume of this sort will solve the problem of what to wear all summer at almost any occasion or combination of occasions you may find yourself involved in Variety in Tailor Mades.

Any doubts as to the success of the tailored mode are forever set at rest now that clothes are worn, instead of merely written of Fortunately in the tailored suit there is infinite variety, otherwise its knell would be quickly sounded, since, some opinions to the contrary, women will have nothing which savors of standardization in dress.

Further confirmation of the fashion comes in word from Paris, where the Longchamp races seal the fate of fashion. Not only the short-coated suit, but suits with longer coats are worn, and separate coats show smart tailoring in every detail. The suit with the cape back has its devotees also, and the suit with a cape which is detachable has a cachet which women approve.

Softening jabots, graceful scarfs and many feminizing details are permissible with the tailleur. While most of the coats are unbelted and show a fine disdain for the waistline, others have little plaits which produce a nipped in line, a type of suit French women find to their liking.

Both double and single-breasted coats are approved, and a directoire suggestion results from a slightly raised placement of the single button. Notch collars are a feature not only of suits, but separate coats. Even satin ones go to this extreme in some instances, and, for that matter, satin suits are impressive.

Covert cloth, pencil stripes, soft woolens and broadcloth make up smart suits; while for sports wear all materials bow to flannel.

While the all-red costume, except for evening, is a rarity, the all-red hat is quite the reverse, and the costume which has nothing of red about it, is almost the exception.

Even the suit is not exempt from period influence. It borrows from the directoire, and from the Puritan fathers with almost equal ease, and the slashed doublet of the Middle ages may be modernized so that the herald who originally wore it would hardly recognize his familiar garb.

The two-piece idea grows apace. Even quite formal frocks are divided somewhere near the waistline, and tunics of the most abbreviated as well as elongated types are things with which to reckon. Blouses which are severely tailored do not tuck under the skirt half as often as they end outside.

Fabrics Used in Court Costumes.

Unusual combinations of heavy and light fabrics were noted in the court gowns presented by Reville at a recent mannequin parade in London, where filmy georgette dresses were allied to trains of heavy shot metallic moire. On the other hand, heavily beaded and bejeweled matrons' gowns were finished with filmy tulle-like trains One of the most interesting features of the display was the new contrivances devised by Monsieur Reville to enable shingled and bobbed debutantes to wear the regulation three feathers without a jeweled band or tiara. A return to favor of white gloves for evening wear is predicted by Reville, who provided all mannequins showing evening gowns as well as court attire with long-sleeved gloves almost reaching to the shoulder.

A pale apricot shot with pink coral with a gleam of gold in the threads, pale water blue, crocus mauve, apple green with touches of silver, lime yellow and pale aquamarine, shot with gold and silver, were among the colors noted, in addition to the traditional white. As a matter of fact, few white court gowns were shown even for debutantes Lace was strongly sponsored, while, as usual, heavy beaded and jeweled effects were seen. Straight gowns of the classical and medieval type, frequently with the waist undefined, and a few godet effects for debutantes' dresses were shown.

Considerable stress was laid on realistic sprays of silken flowers and leaves, sometimes interspersed with grapes, which hung from the shoulders to the hem. Jewel paillettes and glittering crystals.

About Lingerie.

Somebody said that real culture and refinement began only when people started to care for things which were ordinarily not visible, such as lingerie, for example. During the darkest centuries of the Middle ages coarse wool was in order for shirts; later came linen. We find that some sybaritic persons have worn silk chemises during the Twelfth century. These chemises were of heavy silk and differed from the outer garments that were worn next to the skin.

The slashed and wide-sleeved garment of the Middle ages gave opportunity to display the chemise in case one had any. It was still an article of great luxury and many a queen and princess did not own half a dozen. The garments were colorful, while the chemise was white.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 16, 1924.

Again the birdman has beaten the bird at its own game. Another race between carrier pigeons and an airplane makes the latter far and away the winner, that is, if it is quite certain carrier pigeons never halt by the way for any reason, and presumably it is. In these times man can "fly" at greater speed than birds, over longer distances, and to altitudes unknown even to the hardiest eagle.

Leopold, the elder of the two "boy murderers" of Chicago, "worshipped Schopenhauer," adored "erotic sixteenth century literature," and delighted to read in the original Italian the "obscene confessions" of Benvenuto Cellini. Such was a part of the preparation of a precocious youth for the causeless and ghastly crime in which he participated, by his own confession, for the sake of a "new sensation," risking the even more novel sensation of the jail and the gibbet.

INDIAN-AMERICANS.

Shall we now have an "Indian-American" vote mobilized behind a candidate pledged to the interests of the aboriginals, after the fashion so long witnessed in the case of other hyphenated groups, or will the Indians, after long disillusioning experience, be too skeptical of worthwhile results to take advantage of their opportunity? The question is suggested by the announcement that the President has signed the bill conferring citizenship upon all Indians born within the United States, which is an epochal event because heretofore only certain classes and individuals have enjoyed this statue. Only in the 148th year of the independent existence of the United States has Congress seen fit to give the descendants of the original Americans the same legal status that for generations has been conferred on any European immigrant desiring it after five years of residence.

In this grant of citizenship it is expressly provided that the Indians shall not thereby be deprived of any right in tribal or other property. Nor is the Federal government relieved of its obligation to those residing under its care on reservations. Though there is seeming inconsistency in this, it may be necessary as a means of protection for the more helpless classes. For there are still white men, as of old, who look upon the Indian as a creature to be ignored, cheated, and if possible dispossessed of any land he may hold. Obviously it remains to be seen to what extent will be satisfactory the results of this tardy act of justice to a race that has not only been robbed of a continent but hedged in and limited in its freedom both of social custom and religious worship.

FAMILY PRIDE RESTRAINS.

In pronouncing sentence of long imprisonment at hard labor upon four young men who caused the death of a 17-year-old girl under revolting circumstances the judge said: "How gladly would I spare your friends and relatives, but human wisdom has not yet devised a way of punishing the guilty and saving the innocent from sorrow and suffering." And the condemned in their public statement said: "We are content to suffer ourselves, but we keenly feel the awful sorrow brought upon our families and friends." They thought too late of the "awful sorrow" they would bring upon the reputable families to which they belonged, but fortunately for human society many men remember it in time. It is perhaps not too much to say that with the average man the reluctance to bring disgrace upon his family is a restraining force second only to the fear of punishment to be suffered in his own person. Men who are absolutely without scruples on religious grounds, and are willing to assume all personal risks, will often hesitate and draw back at the thought of what the meditated deed will cost a good mother and an honorable father.

Such reluctance on the part of a man who cares for his family when he cares for little or nothing else under the sun is apt to be the greater in proportion to the honorable standing enjoyed by that family in a given community, showing that at bottom it is largely family pride that restrains. Family pride is widely condemned, being often even the subject of jest; and certainly pride in nothing more than descent from a pretended or genuine title at a remote period is essentially ridiculous. Nevertheless the man of reputable parents who can point to several generations of honorable if not greatly distinguished ancestry has cause for congratulation, for the knowledge thereof is a spur to effort and begets the laudable ambition not to sink to a lower level. The man with a worthy background in the past is less apt than the man without it to forget, in the moment of temptation, that he has a family to disgrace, and will think twice before he besmirches a good name.

That Body of Yours

WHY THE WARNING?

A patient once said to his physician, "Why do you warn many of your patients about overeating. Surely the stomach, liver, intestines and the other organs of digestion are all the better for working, because they get so much to do, it must actually strengthen them."

The physician said:

"I advise my patients to refrain from overeating for a number of reasons. If they are young I want to prevent attacks of indigestion with the consequent pain.

If they are in their young manhood or womanhood, to prevent the above troubles and to prevent overweight.

In middle age and older people, because there is so much excess waste that the blood actually carries some of it to the walls of the arteries, which becoming slightly inflamed, lose some of their elastic tissue. This elastic tissue is replaced by fibrous tissue, and the vessel becomes hard instead of soft and yielding. This means actual "age" to you, because your arteries tell your age.

But there is one real big reason that I don't tell them about, because they wouldn't beleive it, if I did tell them.

The more a man eats, the less he wants to work or exercise.

This is so true that he'd only get mad if it were pointed out to him. You see the point?

The very act of taking on board more food than you need means that you are going to feel a bit sluggish for a considerable time after meals. (Rest for a short time after meals is quite all right).

This sluggishness in itself means that you'll have no desire to do manual work, or take any exercise.

Further, as you grow heavier, every little bit of exertion means more effort on your part than that of a slighter person, and so you save yourself all you can.

Every move is an effort, and so you refuse to move.

Now one of the joys of life is eating. If your food doesn't look or taste good to you, there's something wrong with you, that's all.

It's a sign of health to have a good appetite and to be able to enjoy everything that is placed on the table.

But nature expected you, with your good appetite, to use up that food by exercise.

The only way any development comes is by use. Your muscles will get no development unless they are used.

And so when a healthy fellow like you eats a great quantity of food, and your muscular sysetm is not worked to use up the food, then the food is deposited in the form of fat in, on, and around all the tissues and organs of the body.

I wouldn't mind a fellow eating big meals, if he would build them into muscle by exercising or working outdoors. I know he will not do the work, so that's why I warn him of the dangers of overeating.

WATERPOWER COULD SAVE BIG COAL BILLS.

According to State Engineer Dwight B. La Du the undeveloped potential water power in the state of New York aggregates in excess of 2,000,000 horsepower annually. This represents annually 20,000,000 tons of coal, figured on a basis of $5 a ton totalling $100,000,000. Mr. La Du says the people of the state could save this immense amount of money if the waterpower were properly developed. He is urging state development and control without delay so that this could be brought about.

Mental Clinic Here Friday

Object is to Discuss Matters With People Who Feel Depressed and Eliminate Cause and Effect Cure.

The monthly mental clinic conducted under the auspices of the Middletown State Hospital and the commission for mental defectives, will be held in the county building, 74 John street, on Friday, June 20, from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m.

Appointment for examination before the date of the clinic may be made by applying to Dr. Robert Woodman, superintendent of the state hospital, at Middletown, N. Y.

Attention will be given to those applying at the clinic by Dr. Arthur S. Moore and Dr. William Thayer, Jr., the specialists in attendance, and Mrs. Osborne, the social worker, and Miss Dorothy C. Bedworth, the psychometric examiner.

More attention is paid at the present time to the cause of mental disorders and the idea that they are the act or visitation of God is being largely discarded. It is learned that many of these conditions are due to faulty environment or bad hygienic conditions which can be corrected or eliminated. It is now aimed to get at the bottom of the disorder and to direct our endeavors toward alleviation or cure.

The object of this clinic is to give advice and prevent the occurrence of mental states which interfere with the well-being of individuals and their ability to get along with others. Often worries become so great that they appear insurmountable and a person becomes depressed and finally his ideas are strange and peculiar and no relief seems to be at hand. A visit to the clinic and a consultation with the specialist in attendance may show matters in an entirely different light and lead to a solution of the difficulty.

In the case of the mentally deficient, segregation and education have been found to be the most important measures to be followed but if all mental defectives who are at large were segregated the expense would be so great that it would be impracticable.

Early training of these individuals should be started during childhood and very successful results have been attained. By proper training a level of intelligence or behavior can be reached where such people are able to remain in the community, become self supporting and get along without any difficulty.

In the same manner many people who are somewhat queer and eccentric or show peculiar mental ideas can be helped to adjust themselves to ordinary conditions and become useful members of society.

The establishment of clinics throughout the state like the one at Kingston is the aim of the State Hospital Commission. They are held in the various districts in which the state hospitals are located and the staff physicians who attend have a large experience in mental disorders, and are competent to advise the proper measures to be followed.

All efforts are directed toward relief or cure and special attention is directed toward the occurrence of the initial mental attack.

These clinics should be a great benefit to the community as a place where information can readily be obtained in regard to measures which may be applied in the case of friends or relatives who may need institutional or home care.

NEW PALTZ.

New Paltz, June 16.—The sixty-one members of the senior class of the New York State Normal School and eleven members of the class of the New Paltz High School were graduated at the commencement exercises here Wednesday morning, June 11. Exercises as follows: Processional; invocation, the Rev. Frank R. Wilson, New Paltz; introduction, the principal, Mr. Van Denberg; chorus, "There's a Lark in My Heart." Senior Glee Club; address, high school valedictory, Mary Rowland Wright; Normal School valedictory, Edna May DuBois; chorus, "The Green Cathedral." Junior Glee Club. The address to the graduates was delivered by Dr. Frank P. Graves, state commissioner of education, who talked on "Character." Dr. Graves outlined in an interesting manner the various elements which constitute character and which tend to create it. He also pointed out the necessity of character, which stands the acid test. Among the other prominent persons attending the graduation exercises was James A. Hamilton, secretary of state. Next came the presentation of diplomas by Daniel Smiley, president of the local board of trustees. Following the graduation exercises luncheon was served to the faculty, graduates and their friends. In the evening the Philean Society, a newly organized group of girls, held its banquet. The dinner was followed by a dance. Those who graduated from New Paltz are Alice B. Ormsbee, Ruth J. Morris; Anna Fisher Kite from the Normal class, and Wilbert J. Alsdorf, Catherine L. Bell, Ethelyn N. Craig, John V. DuBois, Mary W. DuBois, Laurettta Freer, Harry V. Harp, Bertha B. Jansen, Walter S. Van Wagenen, Margaret E. Walsh, from high school class.

The Garden Card Party.

Many tables have been spoken for for the card party which is to be given Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 for the benefit of Temple Emanuel. As the grounds of the former Preston property on Abruyn street are very large there is still room for any who wish to participate in this event. Any kind of cards, bridge whist, plain whist, five hundred, pinochle, etc., can be played as there will be a prize for each table. A small admittance will be charged, which will also include refreshments. Anyone wishing to make up a table kindly notify either the hostess, Mrs. David Weil, 2217-J, or Mrs. Harry Jacobs, 1471-M.

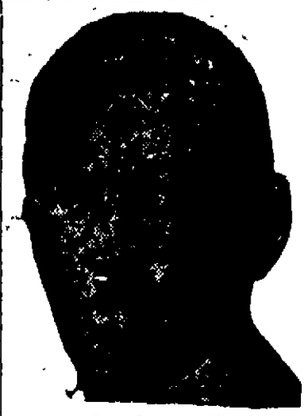
New York Specialist

OPPOSES THE WILD CRAZE FOR SURGERY

Many operations are made every day that could be avoided by having proper treatment. No one should consent to have surgical operations unless every other method has been tried to cure the trouble.



Dr. Swinburne, Specialist
Who is Strongly Opposed to the wild craze for surgical operations.

COMES TO KINGSTON

Every Wednesday and Will Examine All Cases Free at 163 Clinton Ave. from 9 a. m. to 12 and 1 to 5 and 7 to 8 p. m.

RELIEF WITHOUT SURGERY

A young lady was supposed to be suffering from gall stones, and one surgeon claimed it was appendicitis. Four doctors, two of whom were prominent surgeons, had advised this patient that an operation was absolutely necessary. A thorough examination proved it was not a case of gall stones nor appendicitis, but one of obstruction of the bile ducts from catarrhal inflammation and impaction of the gall bladder. Treatment was given immediately which removed the obstruction and reduced the inflammation and in a few days the patient was entirely relieved of all suffering and has since made a complete recovery.

TO RESTORE A HEALTHY STOMACH WILL HELP MANY OTHER DISEASES.

In nine-tenths of the ailments there is some weakness of the stomach and poor assimilation of foods that has caused the more serious disturbance. If you have already developed other disease conditions such as headache, recurring vomiting spells, gall stones, jaundice or the more distressing disorders of malnutrition, neuritis, neurasthenia, rheumatism or heart weakness, you should at once begin a course of treatment to build up digestive and assimilative functions and the results from such treatment is often astonishing.

Rheumatism Relieved by Treating the Stomach.

Mr. Henry Cole, a fireman, was so badly crippled from rheumatism that he had to give up work, and could only get around with the aid of crutches. He had treated with a number of doctors without obtaining any relief, until he became much discouraged and thought there was no hope for him.

His attention was called to a similar case where Dr. Swinburne had produced wonderful results in relieving rheumatic trouble by giving treatment to cure the stomach of the terrible acidity, and stop the accumulation of acid in the blood, and Mr. Cole decided to make one more effort to obtain relief. To his great astonishment and joy, he found after one month's treatment he had no further use for the crutches, and after three months he was entirely relieved and was enjoying perfect health.

If you are suffering from any chronic or obscure disease, you should call to see the doctor, for there will be no charge unless you want treatment.

Doctor's next visit to 163 Clinton Ave., Kingston, on Wednesday, June 18th, from 9 a. m. to 12 m.; 1 p. m. to 5 p. m.; 6:30 to 8 p. m.

Plan to Amend Comp'sation Laws

For the Protection of Handicapped Workers—Payment To State Where Employe Is Killed Leaving No Dependents.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 16.—As a result of a favorable decision just handed down by the United States Supreme court, plans are under way to amend workmen's compensation laws so as to require that payment of accident insurance shall be made to the state in cases where wage earners are killed without leaving dependents entitled to compensation under the law, it was stated today by the American Association for Labor Legislation.

"Under the terms of the New York workmen's compensation law which tre Supreme court has upheld," says the association's statement, "the insurance carrier must pay $1,000 into a special state fund when a workman is killed who leaves no dependents to receive accident compensation. One-half of the $1,000 goes toward the rehabilitation of industrial cripples, and half toward paying additional compensation to workers who have been totally disabled for life as a result of a second injury.

"The way is now clear for the adoption of this enlightened provision in all states, and efforts will be made to have action taken at the forthcoming legislative sessions."

The association asserts that the New York law offers the fairest method yet proposed to relieve employers of the fear of being called upon to bear an unreasonable burden of accident cost in case they give to handicapped workers a second chance to earn a livelihood.

"The principle of rehabilitating maimed workers and restoring them to useful self-sustaining occupations is now accepted in America," the statement concludes. "Accident compensation laws should be brought into full harmony with this principle, and place all employers on the same basis. Then if a worker is hired who has, for example, but one eye and yet is capable of doing his work well, the employer knows that in case a second injury destroys the remaining eye he will be called upon to meet the insurance cost of only the second injury as in the case of a normal worker, and not the cost of total permanent disability. The difference will be paid out of a special fund like that in New York."

Ailanthus Wood

The forest products laboratory says that recent experiments have shown that the wood of ailanthus can be made into a good grade of book paper. The wood gives a high yield of pulp, bleaches easily and can be used for book, lithograph and writing paper. The ailanthus, otherwise known as the tree of heaven, grows rapidly. In some places it is said to produce tons of wood to the acre every three years.

Queer Villages

Tucked away in odd corners of Great Britain are some villages with peculiar names. In Kent we find Painter's Forstal, Dripping Gore, and Old Wives Lees. The last place derived its strange name from the fact that old women of the district used to run an annual race there for prizes offered by the local lord of the manor. Dripping Gore was so called because the Danes and Saxons are believed to have fought a battle at this spot.

Lightning and Forest Fires

It Starts Some of Them. But Its Damage Is Slight In Comparison to Fires Caused by Human Beings.

Lightning sets many forest fires every year, although in the east the number is small compared with those set by human beings, says New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse University.

The importance of this factor in forest protection has led the Forest Service in the west to make an interesting study of lightning as it relates to forest destrruction. It has been discovered that one lightning storm in every four sets a fire. The average storm that sets fires has 48 per cent of its lightning directed toward the earth whereas the more dangerous storm has 75 per cent of its lightning confined to the clouds.

The investigations showed that in 1922 the average fire-starting storm had fifty-one per cent of its lightning striking while other storms had only 35 per cent. It was found that six hours elapsed before the discovery of sixty-five per cent of the fires set. As thunder can be heard 30 to 40 miles it is believed that the fire forces can use such warnings to advantage by preparing for fire at the first sound of thunder.

With such complete fire organization as is found in the Adirondacks no fire of any serious proportions could burn six hours without being discovered by one of the fifty-five lookout stations and as there was only one fire set by lightning out of a total of 236 last year the danger from lightning is small.

The expense of elaborate forest fire fighting systems which comes from the pockets of the people and the care with which the forest officials are required to use in combating the tremendous annual timber losses by fire should act as a warning to those who enter the forest to take all possible precautions in their use of fire for smoking and camping.

WITH THE STAMP OF PARIS'S APPROVAL

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

The ensemble idea percolates through various costumes worn by smart women both in town and out. We are in the mood for matching up the several units which go to make up our toilette, nor are we alone in this, since reports from Paris indicate that the things which are in sets are enjoying favor.

The blouse is trimmed, for example with the same garniture as the hat, and the success of this is illustrated in a white crepe blouse and a white hat both being trimmed with a black and silver braid and tassels. Hats which are mated to scarfs are of general interest and find many sponsors, and just now gloves which match or at least tone it with one's stockings are engaging the smartest attention. At Longchamp, the most chic of the French race courses, long suede gloves in nude colorings to match the hose were considered of sufficient importance to cable to America, anxious now as always for news of the latest caprice of the chic Parisienne. That suede gloves have intruded themselves upon our notice is no longer the freshest news but it is new enough to be of great importance to the woman who tries to keep her costume accessories up to the minute. A recent musical production in which a famous French star made her American debut had the honor of being the first vehicle to bring colored gloves before the public. In this instance bright cerise suede gloves were worked with white, this color being repeated in the hat and if memory serves, in the footwear as well. Fashion is partial just now to white which is generously besprinkled with color, and while colored gloves seem to the conservative mind ultra to a degree there is no real reason why one should not indulge themselves in them if they make an appeal.

An overblouse, bearing a French label is made of the colors of the flag, the white bands being narrowest, the red ones next in width and the dark blues widest of all. These band horizontally placed are joined by feather-stitching and the blouse has the fashionably abbreviated sleeve and square neck. It is a shorter version of the tunic and one which blouses instead of being perfectly straight after the approved manner of tunics. It is with the sleeveless, or all-but-sleeveless blouse that short gloves are worn, and have been worn, and now the longer ones are wrinkled into as short a space.

Flood Lighting New Freight Yard

Big Problem to Light New York Central Freight Yard South of Albany, but Electrical Engineers Solved It.

Floodlighting the largest railroad freight yard in the United States, the huge Selkirk yards of the New York Central, now being constructed a short distance south of Albany on the Hudson river, is a problem that has been solved by illuminating engineers of the General Electric Company by the designing of an entirely new type of floodlighting unit. So satisfactory did this unit prove to be for the purpose involved, that an order for 110 of these units, to be installed in the Selkirk yards, has just bene placed with General Electric.

The lights will probably be ready for operation before the end of the present summer. They will be mounted on steel towers 150 feet in height, and scattered up and down the length of the big yard, which will be more than five miles long and a thousand feet in width. Each tower will carry from two to five of the floodlighting units.

The arrangement of the units and the direction in which the beam will be pointed is such that the train crews will always have the light at their backs and never in front of them, thus avoiding the problem of a glaring light shining in their eyes. This is done simply by pointing all the lighting units on the southbound tracks toward the south, and all those on the northbound tracks toward the north. Owing to the great space of the yard, the light units on the northbound tracks will not in any way shine in the eyes of crews working on the southbound tracks.

To allow the replacing of the 1,000-watt Mazda incandescent lamps, with which the units will be equipped, and to permit of any other necessary adjustments to be performed in the daytime, without disturbing the direction in which the light beam is pointed, the units are provided with a hinged back door, which allows easy access to the lamp This insures having the units continually pointing in the same direction in which they were originally turned—the direction of the traffic on the tracks.

These units known as Form L-22, are manufactured of non-corrosive materials, to resist the corrosive gases usually present in large railroad yards or terminals.

When finally in operation, the big Selkirk yard will be electrical throughout, except only the locomotives which handle the trains. Turntables, switching mechanisms and shops will all be electrically operated.

Hundreds of freight cars will be handled every day and numerous through freight trains will be made up at the Selkirk yards. It will relieve materially congestion now centering at Albany, and will expedite the movement of tons of essential products on which the daily life of great centers of population depends. It is laid out as an ideal classification yard and through it will clear freight traffic between New York city and southern points, New England and the west.

It has already been found by railroads that floodlights in big freight yards speeds up traffic, reduces damage to cars, guards against pilfering and increases safety.

TULLE OR CHIFFON FOR THE GIRL-BRIDE.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

One of the many traditions of marriage customs, that of a bride wearing white, has been about the only one which persists. For the formality of a small wedding, the young bride nearly always chooses white, unless she elects to be married in street clothes. Good sense rather than tradition governs the woman who goes to the altar for the second time. She may wear white, of course, but wisely strangles an impulse she may have to do so and never, never, wears a veil. The basic idea is that no matter how often a woman may wed, she is, in the sentimental meaning of the word, never a bride but once.

Since brides are of all ages these days, and in all walks of life, variety must of necessity enter into bridal array. There is the bride of wealth, with dignity and tradition to uphold, who chooses a regal type of gown. And there is the more girlish bride whose path is not through formal places. She will be wise, as well as lovely, if she chooses bridal satin and rare old lace, and pledges her troth in chiffon and lace which is exquisitely dainty, but not necessarily of intrinsic value.

For the youthful bride, the dresses sketched may make a stronger appeal than more austere types. Even though the bride longs to look beautiful, she also wants very much to look like her own sweet self. A lovely fairy-like bridal frock is of white tulle banded with silver ribbon and picoted in silver, a girlish gown which is not too elaborate or formal for a graduation.

Either chiffon or net are ethereal and lovely over silver cloth. A white chiffon frock with a deep lace border applied to the edge of its apron and a shallow lace yoke is a dress for which no bride need apologize. A panel train is easily detached, leaving a charming dinner frock. If the bride wants to wear a veil, and what bride does not, she may border the tulle with lace.

Brides are trodding the flowery path to the altar in silver kid slippers and letting individual preference dictate the length of their skirts.

In passing, it may be mentioned that Paris approves suede rather than glace gloves this spring which applies, of course, to brides as well as ordinary mortals.

PRINTS INVADE THE SPORTS FIELD

(By Eleanor Gunn).

The community, s... has individuality and ...gh point of interest it is largely fa... Some of the new- ...straine. Family ...ber or suede with perhaps a basket weave or some such effect of patent leather, are quite wide. Red belts, as well as red handbags, are liked by those whose waist measure permits such daring. Narrow belts are frequently fastened rather tightly around the normal waistline, which makes one certain that the directoire line cannot be ignored.

Among the newer sport frocks are those of printed line, and there are jaquettes and coats of printed cottons, linen and ginghams. Gingham, which may have had its day as a fashionable fabric, being brought out of the kitchen in wartime, and worn for all sorts of activities, is now having its day as an accessory. Gingham scarfs are good looking with or without a gingham hat to match, while short tailored gingham coats and gingham parasols have been reported from the smartest country clubs.

Among the curious sports items which warrant publicity, is the evolution of candlewick bedspreads from their original use to sports frocks. Table cloth frocks have been written of repeatedly, proving that designers are quick to recognize decorative possibilities, and that nothing is quite safe from their hands.

The border idea has excellent standing just for sports frocks, even white pleated skirts have a band of color at their hem, this color being repeated in the coat or hat. False hem of contrasting bright color on white are voted smart in the same degree as plain white scarfs ending in a wide band of color.

GRAPE PESTS SUCCUMB TO POISON SPRAY.

Methods of controlling the grape root worm and the grape berry moth, two insect pests which often work much havoc in New York vineyards, form the subject of a recent statement issued by the entomologists at the experiment station at Geneva. Tests have been under way in the station vineyards for the past 14 years in an effort to discover satisfactory means of combating these insects, and the station authorities are now able to make definite recommendations. Both pests have been effectively controlled by the use of a poison spray, it is said, while repeated tests have shown that dust mixtures are not to be relied upon.

SHOOTS REVOLVER FROM FOE'S HAND

Wyoming Duelist Wounds Rival in Thumb and Then Repents.

FEUD OVER HORSE ENDS

Colony, Wyo.—Dueling has come to Wyoming; or, perhaps stating it more properly, it has come back to Wyoming. And it has been accompanied by something akin to the old feudal spirit of the mountaineers further east. So far there have been no fatalities, but one man has been seriously wounded. These are the facts of the case:

In a gun duel near this place, in northeastern Wyoming, Sylvester McConaughy suffered the loss of the thumb of his right hand, which was shot off; the fleshy part of his left hand was torn, and wounds inflicted in his face. Fred Hickey, the other party to the affair, escaped nearly unscathed.

Shoots Gun From Foe's Hand.

The two had been having trouble for several years over their ranges. The climax came when McConaughy and Lyndon Painter reached a gate near Hickey's place and were met by the owner and his son Raymond, both of whom were mounted on one horse and carrying rifles. Suspecting trouble, McConaughy, it is said, opened fire on the elder Hickey with an automatic, the bullet grazing the victim's neck. Hickey, firing almost simultaneously, shot his rival's gun from his hands as the latter was trying to pull the trigger again. The bullet tore the man's thumb away and glanced from the stock to his other hand. Fragments of it also penetrated his face in several places near the mouth. Meanwhile Painter rushed to another rancher's house for help.

Takes Wounded Man Home.

Following the shooting, Raymond Hickey, twenty one, shot and killed McConaughy's horse for revenge. But the feud was carried no further. Suddenly repentant, the elder Hickey played the part of the Good Samaritan by helping his enemy to the Hickey home, where his wounds were bandaged.

A doctor from Hulett and Deputy Sheriff J. C. Hurtt were called shortly afterward. No arrests have been made. McConaughy will recover.

FARMER WOUNDED IN ROW WITH KIN OVER LOOSE HOG

Georgia Man Shoots Brother-in-Law Following Argument—Victim in Serious Condition.

Jeffersonville, Ga.—Shot in the chest with a shotgun said to have been fired by G. W. Jackson, R. L. Long was rushed to the Macon hospital from here. The shooting took place in the old Richland community, on the Jackson farm, and is said to have been caused by a dispute over a hog. Jackson was arrested and is now in the Twiggs county jail here.

Several score of shots penetrated Long's stomach, breast, arms and head. The two men involved in the shooting are brothers-in-law and live on adjoining farms.

The shooting is said to have been the immediate result of a quarrel over a hog belonging to Long that had escaped from the pen and gone onto Jackson's land.

Long went to the Jackson home, it is reported, and found that Jackson had turned a bulldog loose on his hog. Long claims that the bulldog had torn the hog's head, and that he went to remonstrate with his brother-in-law.

Long and Jackson were standing in the yard of the Jackson home, according to reports, and were disputing about the bulldog's attack upon the hog, when Jackson stepped back into his house and secured a shotgun, firing upon Long through a window as the latter stood in the yard.

The men live about eight miles from Jeffersonville and are well known in this county. They were in town together here recently and friends report that they seemed the best of friends.

Gave Away $512 in Tips, Now He Wants It Back

Atlantic City.—A hectic gathering in a North side saloon, at which $10 bills were used to light cigarettes and $20 tips were given to waiters, was narrated in the court of Magistrate Joseph Paxton, where three young women were arraigned on a charge of robbing Alexander Massey, Jr., of Washington of $512 in the course of the revel. The three women are Katherine Repp, Alice Leonard and Mae Cuddy, all of 1826 Atlantic avenue.

Massey said he met Katherine Repp at the hotel where he was staying, where she was employed as a telephone operator, and they visited some of the North side cafes. Later the two other women joined the party. According to the testimony Massey lighted cigarettes for the women with $10 bills, threw a $100 bill on the floor, and gave waiters $5 and $20 tips. The next morning he found his bankroll was missing and he went to police headquarters. The arrest of the young women followed. The police say that $285 was returned to Massey by one of the women. All three are held in $500 bail.

Boy "Armed to Teeth" Taken by Virginia Cops

Washington.—Armed like the famed two-gun bandits, thirteen-year-old Bill Smith of Clarendon, Va., was arrested by Arlington county police authorities while sitting on a roadside calmly munching cakes and drinking milk, alleged to have been stolen from a Park lane grocery. With the Virginia youth was a Washington boy, who fled when the officers appeared.

At the Clarendon jail Deputy Sheriff Kines emptied the pockets of Bill's clothes and found two revolvers, a hunting knife, four penknives and a box of cartridges, all of which are said to have been taken from a store at 3271 M street, Northwest. Smith said he had obtained the loot from his Washington companion, whom the police have not been able to locate.

Rabbit Gets "Go" Signal at City's Busiest Corner

Columbus, O.—Traffic—automobile, street car and pedestrian—was stopped for about 30 seconds at Columbus' busiest corner, Broad and High streets, shortly before noon to let a wild rabbit do a marathon down the center of High street.

The traffic cop on duty, seeing bunny's speed and realizing that a traffic jam would result unless he had a clear track, set the block against all Broad street traffic and himself stepped aside to let the rabbit pass.

Where Shall We Fly the Flag?

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHERE shall we fly the flag?—above
The ranks of marching men?
Ah, yes because that flag they love,
Would die to save again
But not alone the soldier lad
The flag should proudly bear;
Let none parade the land he made
Unless the flag is there.

Where shall we fly the flag?—upon
Our ships that go to sea,
Whose flaming guns will light the dawn
For all humanity?
Ah, yes, and peaceful merchantmen,
East West and ev'rywhere—
In ev'ry port of ev'ry sort
Let men behold it there.

Where shall we fly the flag?—display
The standard of our sires?
Above the judge's brow of gray,
Upon our gilded spires
Yes over ev'ry altar rail
And ev'ry judge's chair—
Because we need no court nor creed
That does not want it there

Where shall we fly the flag?—that all
The flag may learn to love?
O'er ev'ry college great or small,
And ev'ry school above
Yes over ev'ry teacher's desk
With children in His care
For in this room our buds will bloom—
We want no treason there

Where shall we fly the flag?—that you
And I may understand
Our blessings and our duty too,
To home and God and land?
The greatest wealth the highest wage,
Of mortals anywhere—
O'er fertile hill and busy mill,
Oh, let us fly it there

Where shall we fly the flag?—with these
The treasures we possess,
Our liberties our luxuries?
What better place ah yes
What better place our love to show,
Our loyalty to wear?—
Where'er we roam when we come home
Oh, let us find it there

Where shall we fly the flag?—that each
May understand and see,
Yes, all who toil, or trade or teach
Whoever we may be?
O'er marching men o'er sturdy ships,
Schools churches ev'rywhere
O'er mill and mart—and in the heart,
Oh let us fly it there!

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE Wife Who Insists On Cheering a Man Up When He Is Feeling "Sorry for Himself" Is Just a Spoilsport.

The first thing a bride has to learn, after the honeymoon, is that she is no longer a fascinating mystery but merely an accepted "fact." But, after all, FACTS are the only things which a man values, respects—and clings to.

At ten, a boy regards girls as pests; at twenty as a mystery; at thirty as a danger; at forty as a divine dispensation; and at fifty, as a rejuvenator.

The first sign of advancing age is a predilection for the "toddle"; the older and fatter a dancing man, the more violently he takes it.

Temperament is a "gift" if you have it yourself—and a "curse" if you are married to it. Because, then, you never know whether you are going to have bouquets, kisses, or the cream jug thrown at you.

A girl is not really in love until she discovers that a kiss can be just as satisfying and thrilling in a 1916 Flivver as in a 1924 Twin six.

Never try to break the heart of a man of forty-seven. For if the woman of the moment fails him there are still his philosophy, his work, his golf, his tobacco, his clubs, his books—and another woman—to console him.

COWS' WADING

"It's warm enough, quite warm enough, moo, moo," said Mrs. Cow.

"Oh yes, moo, moo," said Mrs. Black and White Cow.

"Yes, indeed; moo, moo, moo," said Mrs. Brown and White Cow.

"I think it's plenty warm enough," said Miss Spotted Cow, and Mrs. Spotted Cow said the same."

"I heard the children talking about it," said Mrs. Cow. "Moo, moo, I heard them saying they thought it was warm enough for them to take off their shoes and stockings.

"And I felt like saying to them:

"'Poor dears. What a hardship life must be for you! Fancy having to take off shoes and stockings or having to put them on again, or having to fuss about them at all.

"When they go in wading they must take off their shoes and stockings and hold up their skirts, or pull up their breeches if they're boys.

"Of course they may go around a great deal without their shoes and stockings when the warm weather comes, but even so, at some time or other they must wear shoes and stockings and must fuss about all such things.

"Yes, I think the life of a cow is simpler.

"Now when we decide it is nice enough to go in wading we just go in wading."

So the cows wandered down to the river stream and stood in the cool water until they really felt quite chilly.

Then they came out and took a rest in the sunshine and sat about on the grass of their meadow.

They did not talk much. They hadn't much to talk about. They enjoyed the air and the soft breeze and the sunshine.

They did not have much to bother them. They had to brush off flies once in awhile, but even the flies had not come around very much, so the day was a very happy one.

"Moo, moo," said Mrs. Cow, "I love to chew my cud."

"Chew, chew, moo, moo," said Mrs. Black and White Cow. "Every once in awhile we have to speak of the beauty of those two words."

"True," said Mrs. Brown and White Cow. "Moo, moo, it is true, we do."

"Moo, moo, the truth," said Miss

When They Go In Wading.

Spotted Cow, and Mrs. Spotted Cow said:

"That's a rhyme. A cow rhyme. Listen to it now as I sing it in my best cow fashion:

"Moo, moo,
It is true,
We do
Love to chew."

"Fine," said the other cows. "Let us call that the National Cow song. Perhaps that wouldn't be a suitable name, but let us call it the Cows' song."

So the cows decided to call it their song and later they made up another verse to their song which went like this:

"Moo, moo,
We love to wade,
We're not afraid,
Of getting wet.
We do not fret
For fear our skirts
Will later fade.
For we don't wear
Such silly things.
Moo, moo,
This, too, is true."

SOME GOOD CAKES

A delicate nicely flavored cake is a work of art. The following are a few that are economical and good. Now that eggs are reasonable in price, this is a cake to make occasionally:

Almond Cake.—Cream one-third of a cupful of butter, add one cupful of sugar, one-fourth of a cupful of milk, the yolks of six eggs beaten and one cupful of flour sifted with one teaspoonful of baking powder. Flavor with the grated rind of a lemon. Beat the whites of the eggs stiff, add one cupful of sugar and one cupful of chopped unbleached almonds. Mix the cake and spread the meringue and nuts over the butter. Bake in a slow oven. This cake may be baked in layers and put together with whipped cream or a cooked cream as filling, making a perfectly luscious cake.

Sponge Cake.—Beat the yolks of six eggs until thick, add one cupful of sugar gradually, and continue beating; add one tablespoonful of lemon juice and the grated rind of half a lemon. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff and fold in until partly mixed, then add one cupful of flour and a little salt. Bake one hour in a tube pan.

Rochester Chocolate Cake.—Cream one-fourth of a cupful of butter, add one cupful of sugar gradually, two squares of chocolate melted, two eggs well beaten, one-half cupful of milk, one and one-third cupfuls of flour mixed and sifted with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt. Beat well, add a teaspoonful of vanilla and bake in a moderate oven forty-five minutes. Cover with:

Ice Cream Frosting.—Boil to a thread two cupfuls of sugar and six tablespoonfuls of water; pour the sirup gradually over two well-beaten egg whites. Beat until thick, flavor and spread over the cake.

Pudding sauce may be prepared using fruit juices, canned or fresh, water or vinegar with various flavorings, thickened with butter and flour.

Called a Fanatic

Rowland Hill once said: "Because I am in earnest men call me a fanatic, but I am not; mine are words of truth and soberness. I once saw a gravel pit fall in and bury three human beings alive. I shouted so loud for help that I was heard at the distance of a mile; help came, and two of the poor sufferers were rescued. No one called me a fanatic then."

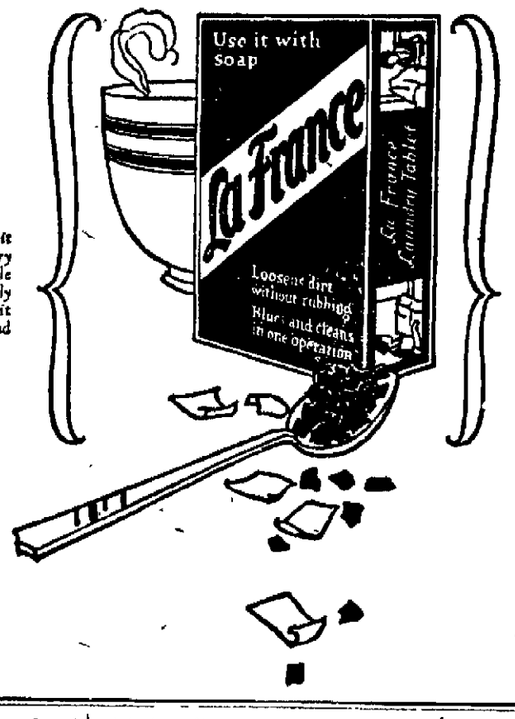
It cuts your heavy wash-day work in two—no rubbing-no bluing

HAVE you a neighbor who washes with La France? Ask her how much hard labor it saves. She will tell you she wouldn't be without it for the world. Two tablespoonfuls of this wonderful product dissolved with the soap—and you don't have to rub or blue. La France blues as it cleans.

With La France, you just soak or boil the clothes, then rinse and wring, and the washing is done. And how beautifully done! The clothes are a lovely snow-white, and so sweet and clean.

Use La France with any soap you like—bar, powder or flakes. Or in the washing machine. Notice how thick and rich it makes the suds, and how the dirt seems almost to melt away. Only 10 cents a package. Order from your grocer to-day.

For ironing, use Satina. Added to the hot starch, it keeps the iron from sticking and gives a soft glossy finish to the clothes. Is delightfully perfumed. La France Manufacturing Company, Philadelphia.



La France blues as it cleans. Loosens every sticky, greasy particle of soil so it can be easily rinsed away. Use it with soap of any brand or kind.

Only 3½ cents each wash-day for this wonderful product that does away with all the drudgery of washing. For boiler, tubs or washing machine.

"Secrets" Showing At Opera House

When Miss Norma Talmadge attended the premier of her latest and most talked of picture, at a Los Angeles theater several months ago, she was made the recipient of a very unusual compliment paid her by a prominent woman. At the close of the showing while Miss Talmadge was standing in her box, acknowledging the plaudits of the audience, the woman sent to her a dainty lace handkerchief soaked with tears. The incident is typical of "Secrets" in its power to move people's emotions, by the soul-searching exposition it portrays of a wife's innermost secrets.

It should not be misunderstood however that "Secrets" is a sad picture, for it is anything but that. There is plenty of vigorous, rollicking, pulsating action at every stage of its development, but there are as well some of the most impressive emotional incidents that have ever yet been incorporated in a theatrical attraction.

"Secrets" opened at the Opera House today and continues for four days. There will be two performances daily at 2.30 and 8:15.

Try to Dismiss Anti-Bonus Suit

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 16.—The government today asked District of Columbia supreme court to dismiss the case of Joseph Wheless, New York attorney, who is seeking to have the soldiers' bonus law declared unconstitutional.

The reply to the anti-bonus suit was filed by the government officials who were made defendants—Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Secretary of War Weeks, Secretary of Navy Wilbur, and Director Hines of veterans' bureau.

They declared that Wheless had alleged no facts upon which the court could restrain them from administering the bonus law.

Will Have Determining Voice in Republican National Campaign — Slemp Not to Resign—Coolidge Consults All Factions.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 16.—The dissension and internal warfare that broke out between President Coolidge's campaign managers and advisers at Cleveland over the management of the national convention culminated today in C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to the president, issuing a formal statement denying he was contemplating resigning his post.

This statement was issued by Mr. Slemp at noon after reports were persistently circulated throughout Washington during the morning that Slemp had decided to quit.

No official information was to be had the White House concerning these reports until after a conference between the president and his secretary, when the following statement was made by Slemp:

"I am leaving this afternoon for Cincinnati to be present at an operation to be performed on my cousin, H. W. Slemp, now in a hospital there. He is my chief dependent in my business affairs. I am taking Dr. Oden with me.

"I shall be away several days. The time of my return is in a certain sense, on account of this, indefinite.

"When I do return I expect to be actively associated in the campaign and in my present position, which I have not resigned.

"In all probability I will be on the advisory committee of the national Republican committee which will have the real management of the campaign."

Especial significance was laid on the last sentence of Slemp's statement, as indicating that the advisory committee and not William M Butler, the Massachusetts capitalist, is to have the determining voice in the management of the Republican campaign.

Slemp was among those at Cleveland who rebelled at Butler's management, and he left the convention before the nomination of General Charles G. Dawes had been accomplished.

Slemp, according to his political assistants, returned from Cleveland fully prepared to resign his post if President Coolidge intended allowing Butler the latitude in the campaign that the latter exercised at Cleveland.

He made a complete report to the president after which Mr. Coolidge took Senator Reed Smoot of Utah and Frank W. Mondell, permanent chairman of the convention, on the trip on the Mayflower over the week end. From these guests, both of whom have long been identified with the old line leadership of the party, he learned other details of what happened at Cleveland.

The Coolidge-Slemp conference took place immediately after the president's return to the White House from his yacht trip this morning, and the statement followed.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 16.—The stock market displayed inherent firmness today. Having risen impressively in seven consecutive sessions it was natural that professional operators devoted part of their energy in testing the technical condition of the list by applying against certain shares, especially those of companies whose earning power had been greatly reduced by the industrial stump, like the steels, and the motor accessories.

The market gave an excellent account of itself. It took the forenoon offerings with little sacrifice in values and with the approach of the lunch hour the upward trend was again definitely established.

Merchandise and public utility shares occupied the center of the speculative stage in the early dealings, but by the turn of the day this honor was conferred on the oils and the rails.

The trading in rails revealed the customary new highs, among which Chesapeake and Ohio and Nickel Plate were particularly prominent. Buying again extended to a number of low priced carriers shares.

Specialties attracted a good bit of attention by reason of their strength. Pool operations were successfully conducted in General Electric, American Radiator, American Can, Davison Chemical, Loose Wiles and National Biscuit.

General Electric established a new high for the year at 234 for a 5½ point gain.

"LOVE IN COTTAGE" BELONGS TO PAST

Modern Maid Not Willing to Take Chances.

A large class of girls in an American college was asked the other day if any of them would marry a man whose income was but $1,000 a year. Not a single hand was raised. It was only when a salary of $3,000 was mentioned that any enthusiasm was shown, while many held out for a higher figure. The opinions of most girls the country over obviously have undergone a remarkable transformation in the past few years.

It is significant that the class in this case had taken a course in household economics and was familiar with the science of devising household budgets.

The president of a southern college recently advised his students not to consider matrimony on a salary of less than $4,000 a year. The students in this case were not drawn from large cities, where living costs are at their highest, but from the country and small towns or cities. They were recruited, however, as a rule from well-to-do families.

It naturally might be expected that the youths of the large or so-called fashionable colleges would consider marriage unjustified except on a much larger income.

The conclusions reached by the students of household economics in this respect will be read with interest by the great mass of housekeepers. With characteristic academic thoroughness the cost of maintaining a home in the country or city has been calculated to the penny.

The rent is set down as a fixed percentage of the income. Allowances are duly made for food, clothes, education and amusements. The figures mathematically are correct.

According to these students of economics, marriage is not justified on a salary of less than $40 a week and few in some colleges would take a chance at less.

It is interesting to note in this connection, however, that more than 1,000,000 marriages took place in America last year.

New French Pet

In France, "the land of queer animal pets," the Siamese cat has just come along as the latest fad to displace the crazy-looking French poodle in popularity.

The Siamese cat, with its blue eyes and fawn coloring, fits well into the general scheme of certain oriental fashions and colorings in home furnishings now in vogue here, and is a very chic and strange pet indeed.

The French also like it because of its daintiness in the matter of food. A "gourmet" is liked here, and a Siamese cat is such a "gourmet" that it would die rather than eat vulgar food.

It is also an aristocratic animal, its aloofness from other animals being so elegant as almost to account for the present phase of cat worship.

Parisian dealers in domestic pets are turning their attention from the poodle to the Siamese cat and are reaping a harvest while the craze lasts.

Erratic Judgment

E— was not experienced in the line of buying green vegetables at the grocery. One day she went to a store with the intention of getting several heads of lettuce, which were marked at a sale price.

At sight of the lettuce she thought she was certainly getting a bargain. After selecting several choice heads, she carried them to the clerk. When he attempted to weigh the heads E— interfered.

"Oh," she said, "I thought they were six cents a head."

"I beg your pardon, miss," answered the clerk, keeping back his laugh, "this is cabbage."

"Well, of all things! I didn't know the difference," and she disgustedly exchanged the cabbage for the desired vegetable.—Exchange.

Agar-Agar

Agar-agar is a pearly white, shiny product invaluable to medical research, to the hospital, to the kitchen, to the cotton mill, and to the brewer. As a culture medium for bacteria it is unrivaled, for it is the only gelatinous substance that can stand the necessary temperatures.

The newest industry of Los Angeles is the manufacture of agar-agar, and the process of manufacture takes 72 hours.

Made Surveying Easy

American museum geologists on their recent third Asiatic expedition in Mongolia, in making a topographical survey of the regions through which they passed were aided by stone monuments built by Mongols to represent prayers to Buddha. Almost every hill was crowned with one of these prayer-monuments, so that the map makers could sight their instruments upon the very same spot every time they used the hill in triangulation.

Acid-Proof Paper

A new product, flexible as silk and transparent as glass, has been developed by a secret process. After years of experimenting this discovery has come and it is likely to open a new field in the paper industry. It is manufactured in various thicknesses, and can be wound in rolls so that consumers may cut it into required lengths. It burns less readily than other paper and is not affected by acid, alkali or oxidizing agents.

The most exciting moment of the Republican National Convention at Cleveland, when Wisconsin's delegates refused to stand during a demonstration at mention of President Coolidge's name. Loyal Coolidge delegates, bearing their state banners, may be seen milling around the defeated Wisconsin delegation.

USUAL ACREAGE OF POTATOES BEING PLANTED

The backward spring has delayed the planting of most crops but New York state farmers still expect to plant about the usual acreage of potatoes, according to reports received by the state and federal departments of agriculture. The 330 potato growers who reported during the first week in May the number of acres that they expect to plant, raised 936 acres of potatoes last year and expect to raise 970 acres this year. This is an increase of nearly 4 per cent compared with last year indicating a return to about the acreage usually grown. About the first of March reports regarding the acreage of potatoes that individual farmers expected to plant indicated that at that time a 3 per cent increase in potatoes was expected in this state and a 2 per cent decrease in the country as a whole. While the number of recent reports is too small and it is too early in the season for final conclusions, the unfavorable weather for farm work has not yet caused any material change in the plans of farmers with respect to potatoes.

On Long Island, potatoes are up and growing but elsewhere in the state the bulk of the crop has not yet been planted.

Judge John R. Caverley, of Chicago, will probably be the presiding judge in the trial of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold, Jr., self-confessed murderers of little Robert Franks.

Preparing for Fall Election

Machinery Being Put in Motion—State Officers, Congressmen, Senators, Assemblymen and Judges to be Elected—One Bond Proposition.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, June 16.—No proposed amendments to the state constitution will be voted on at the general election this year. There are six proposed amendments, passed by one legislature and which will be submitted to the legislature next year before going to the people. There is however, one proposition to be voted on this fall. This provides for a $15,000,000 bond issue to meet the expenses incurred by the extension and improvement of existing state parks, together with the establishment of a unified state park system.

No members are to be elected this fall to the court of appeals, nor to the United States senate, from this state. In addition to the seven elective state officials, including the governor, lieutenant-governor, secretary of state, comptroller, treasurer, attorney general and state engineer and surveyor, there will be elected this fall, forty-three congressmen, fifty-one senators and one hundred and fifty assemblymen, and also four Supreme court justices.

Although general election day is still over four months distant, Secretary of State Hamilton has already started preparations, July first being the first day on which designating petitions may be signed. These can be filed up to August 19. The fall primary occurs on September 16, with September 24 the first day on which state and judicial conventions may be held.

TODAY WE CELEBRATE

"LEAD KINDLY LIGHT."

It was ninety-one years ago today that the immortal hymn, "Lead Kindly Light," was first sung, and the singer was a boatman on an orange boat becalmed in the Mediterranean off the island of Caperra; this was June 16, 1833. John Henry Newman, afterwards the great cardinal, was a passenger on the boat. Ill in body and mind, he was idling in the Mediterranean in the hope of recovering his health. He was especially depressed on that day when the orange boat was becalmed, and so sought to soothe his spirits by composing a hymn. The result was "Lead Kindly Light." The composition occupied but a few hours, and the boatman, who spoke English and was possessed of a fine voice, was asked to sing it. As the day melted into darkness breeze sprang up and becalmed voyagers were guided by the kindly lights along the Caperra shore into a safe harbor. The composer, with health restored, soon returned to England, and became a leader in the Oxford movement until in 1845 he went over to the Roman Catholic Church, which later rewarded his ability and devotion by bestowal of the red hat.

DESIREE CLARY.

"Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned." Even the great Napoleon Bonaparte lived to learn the truth of this saying. The woman in the case was Desiree Clary, whom the Corsican jilted when he became infatuated with Josephine De Beauharnais. It was towards the middle of June, 1794, that Desiree met Jean Babtiste Jules Bearnadotee, later king of Sweden, and it was just a year later that she married him.

Her sister had previously married Joseph Bonaparte, afterwards king of Spain, and later exile in New Jersey. Napoleon's unfaithfulness rankled in the breast of Desiree, all the more so because she had been jilted for a woman of uncertain morals, who had been widowed by the guillotine. In fact Josephine Beauharnais was flung at Napoleon's head by a man whose mistress she had been and who was tired of her.

Desiree was only 16, slender, graceful, remarkably beautiful, and of spotless reputation. She was also heiress to a considerable fortune, and when Napoleon deserted her for the voluptuous creole, he was denounced by his brother, Joseph, and by Desiree's relatives as a knave and a fool. That, however, was before Napoleon had become emperor. Desiree's broken heart was soon mended and her love turned to hatred.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN.

Madison Square Garden, New York city, soon to be the scene of the Democratic national convention, was first opened to the public, as the largest amusement place in America, just 34 years ago today, on June 16, 1890. The great edifice at Madison avenue, 26th to 27th streets, was for many years considered one of the architectural wonders of the Metropolis of the new world, and indeed, may still be so considered, despite the skyscraping Metropolitan Life Tower, nearby, and many other giant office and municipal edifices since constructed. It was constructed of buff brick with terra cotta trimmings, and has an Italian tower rising to a height of 300 feet, bearing aloft, at the peak of the minaret, a gilded statue of Diana, the goddess of hunting. The amphitheater of 80,000 square feeet will seat 15,000 persons, and there is also a concert hall and a roof garden, famed as the scene of the murder of Stanford White, the architect, by Harry Thaw. The garden has been used for horse, poultry, auto and other shows and of recent years, under the direction of Tex Rickards and his associates, has been used for the staging of boxing bouts.

The circus, six-day bicycle race and similar events are also staged in the famous building. The Garden has never been financially successful, and numerous plans have been forward to tear it down and replace it with a modern skyscraper office building.

Four Games Here For Colonials

Four games are scheduled for the Colonials this week. The schedule as announced Sunday is as follows:

Thursday evening, at the Fair Grounds the Havana Cubans, who have a win over the Colonials, will make their second appearance here.

On Friday Chapple Johnson's All Stars will again play here.

On Saturday and Sunday afternoons the Oneonta Giants will play at the Fair Grounds.

Open Air Bouts Here Wednesday

Weather permitting one of the best open air boxing shows ever held in Kingston will be staged Wednesday evening at the Kingston Fair Grounds when the Kingston Athletic Association will hold thirty-eight rounds of fast fighting. The big ring will be pitched between the home plate and the grandstand. There will be plenty of good seats.

Jimmy Russo and Sammy Marino both tipping the scales at 114 pounds each, will furnish ten rounds of entertainment in the fistic art. Both boys are exceptionally fast and clever.

The other ten round go will bring together Joe Romanello of Poughkeepsie and Tony Saracco of New York. This bout should prove good. Romanello showed the fans at the first show that he had a visit to dreamland concealed in his left mitt. In Saracco, however, he is meeting a fast and gamy fighter.

Interest also centers in the eight round scrap between Joe Werner of this city and Johnny Middy of Peekskill. Werner put his opponent to sleep at the Decoration Day bouts, and is training hard for the present bout as he would like to repeat.

Joe Coffey of this city who boxes the four round curtain raiser with Tommy Duffy of New York city, has not fought in some time but is getting himself in tip top shape for this bout. If he makes good, as expected, he will be seen later at other bouts here.

The six round affair will bring together Marty Sullivan and Joey Kauffman, both of New York. This is expected to prove one of the best fights of the evening.

The bouts will start promptly at 8:15 o'clock The third man in the ring and the judges will be appointed by the state boxing commission.

Culloton Hurls Superbly Against Pittsburghers

Over 2,500 Witness Thrilling Contest at Fair Grounds Sunday Between the Colonials and the Pittsburgh Nationals—Errors and a Pinch Hitters' Hit in the Tenth Netted the Pirates the Two Runs of the Game.

Behind the superb hurling of Bud Culloton the Colonials battled nine scoreless innings against the Pittsburgh Pirates Sunday at the Fair Grounds. The visitors broke into the scoring column in the tenth. Even at this stage of the game the Pirates would not have scored upon Bud if he had been given good support. Nelse Dewey blundered with a sure double play in front of him in this inning. Nelse's error of omission was followed by two safeties, which scored the winning tallies.

The weather man favored the Colonial management with the best baseball weather thus far this year. The ideal day brought the fans from the county and vicinity to see the fast National Leaguers. The biggest crowd that has ever witnessed a game on Fair Grounds field enjoyed the prettiest pitching duel that could be desired. Both teams garnered seven hits but clever work in the pinches kept the Pittsburghers away from the plate for nine innings and spectacular work by Grimm and the rest of the Pirate infield choked off several Colonial rallies. The visitors topped off their sparkling play with a lightning-like triple play in the sixth inning that had the fans stunned and wondering what had happened.

In the opening inning Flynn walked and Deegan caught a fast one on his shoulder and the locals had two on with one down. Raskin lined the ball to center field. It looked like a sure hit in any ball game. Sales made a wild stab at the ball and knocked it down. Wright came in like a flash, scooped up the pellet and winged it to Grimm in time to gt "Tubby" at first. It was a clever bit of fielding and too—it was a tough break. McCue went out on a hard shot to Maranville.

Many of the fans had been drawn to the game by the magic name of "Rabbit" Maranville, midget second-sacker and comedian. And they weren't at all disappointed. The "Rabbit" lived up to his reputation and kept the crowd amused during the batting and fielding practice before the game. His side-kick, Charlie Grimm, proved equally amusing and clever. Besides the comedy he furnished, Grimm gave a demonstration of just what first base play should be. It was his work that stopped the Schirickmen in their tracks at three different stages of the game.

Dewey got a scratch single down the third base line to open the second. Coyle attempted to sacrifice but Traynor was onto the play and came in fast to take Bobby's bunt, whipped the ball to scond and Maranville relayed the ball to first, completing the fast double play.

With two down in the third Bud hooked a fast one to Carey's ribs. It was an ideal time for the fleet outfielder to display his base stealing ability. Carey was content however to wait for Bigbee's single to send him to second. Wright lifted a high fly near third and McCue camped under the ball. Carey, on his way to third, stepped out of the base line and in back of McCue yelling, "Let it go. I've got it." The trick worked and Mac stepped aside letting the ball drop safely, filling the bases. On this play Carey was called out for running out of the base line.

Both teams went out in order in the next three innings but it was only the cleverness of "Lefty" Grimm that subdued the Colonials in the sixth. Dugan singled to center to start. Flynn dropped a bunt and Sales fielded the ball and threw wild to second, both runners being safe with none out. With the big Colonial hitters coming up, it looked as if the locals would surely send a tally across this inning. Deegan, attempting to bunt, shoved a short pop down the first base line. Grimm was already started but it did not seem possible for him to catch the ball on the fly. He made a desperate lunge, catching the ball in his bare hand, and throwing to Moore at second. Dugan had already gone to third and Flynn was at second, so it was easy enough for Moore to touch second, doubling Dugan and turn tag Flynn. It all took place so quickly that for several seconds neither the runners or the fans realized what had happened.

In the sixth inning the Pirate line-up was changed. Muller went in at left field, Barnhardt at third, Moore at short, Rawlings at second, Cuyler moved to center field, Ens taking right field. Cuyler's double in the seventh went for naught as the next three were easy outs.

Knox was the first batter in the eighth. He hit one to deep short which Flynn fielded but could not make any play. Knox was forced at second by Sales and Muller forced Sales. Muller tried to steal but Mac's accurate peg cut him down.

With one down in the eighth McLaughlin singled to short. Culloton hit to Grimm forcing Mac at second. Dugan got his second hit of the day, a sharp single to center, Bud stopping at second. Flynn hit to Rawlings who tossed Dugan out, ending the rally. Raskin got a safety in the ninth after Deegan was retired, Moore to Grimm. Sales tightened up and fanned the next two batters.

Now for the hectic tenth. Flynn, who had played a wonderful game at short booted Ens's hard grounder. Rawlings hoisted to Flynn. Grimm smashed a hot one past second on which Flynn made a pretty pick-up. He tossed to Dewey retiring Ens, and Dewey, thinking this made the third out, failed to throw to Coyle to complete the double killing. Knox doubled and Yde batting for Sales, hit to left scoring Grimm and Knox. Muller ended the inning with a fly to Coyle.

The Schirickmen tried hard to even things up in their half of the tenth. McLaughlin singled following Coyle's fly to Barnhardt. Jimmy Morgan ran for McLaughlin and Schwab batted for Culloton. Yde was going nicely, however, and struck out both Shewab and Dugan.

The Colonials did not lose any prestige by dropping the game to a team of this calibre. But only added to their fine record by holding the big Leaguers scoreless for nine innings.

Colonials in Race for Honor

The New York World of Sunday has the following baseball story by William Hennigan, well known sports writer, concerning the Colonials of this city:

At the end of each baseball season a number of teams from far and near lay claim to the semi-pro championship. There is nothing attached to this title; no money, no world's series or anything else, but the claiming of the championship just the same furnishes plenty of good baseball gossip for the fans when the summer days are over. The semi-pro followers have their favorites, and they'll argue all night about the merits of their pet team and players.

Quite a few of the semi-pro fans presented the championship to the Doherty Silk Sox at the end of last season with the Hillsdale of Darby, Pa., as the best negro team in the country. The Silk Sox had every right to the claim of champions, as they compiled a great record, and beat several big league teams. Milton Gaston, now with the Yankees, was their best pitcher.

But there is going to be a new claimant for the championship this season. And the new club which will bid for the title will be the Colonials of Kingston, N. Y. The Colonials on Memorial Day defeated the Silk Sox in both games of a double-header without any effort. They can hit, those Kingston players, for they scored thirteen runs off five Silk Sox pitchers.

Last season they won seventy-two games out of ninety-seven, which is quite a record on man's ball field. This season they have already beaten the Silk Sox twice; Tim Jordan's All Nationals, Chappie Johnson's Stars, Middletown and a number of other teams. Leo Dugan, a brother of the famous "Jumping Joe," plays one of the outfield positions for the Colonials and the Kingston fans are sure that he'll be in the big leagues next season.

Americans Start to Olympic Games

Practically Every State Contributed Athletes to Olympic Contenders—Confidence High Among Them—Tryouts Broke Records.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 10.—Brimful with confidence, the greatest array of athletes ever sent from America in quest of the Olympic title sailed on the liner America from Hoboken at noon today.

From practically every state and territorial possession, has this formidable army of 253 athletes been recruited. In addition to the track and field team there will be gymnasts, boxers, wrestlers, swimmers, cyclists, fencers and oarsmen.

The feeling among the American athletes just before sailing time was that if they were beaten in any event the victor would have to set a new mark. This feeling of record shattering marks is justified, the athletes say, because of the remarkable performances turned in at the final tryouts in the Harvard Stadium last Saturday. These tryouts removed the last doubt as to the ability of American athletes to hold their own. In these tryouts world's records and American marks went by the board, while Olympic standards were surpassed.

The committee announced three additions to the track team—Basil Irwin of the Newark A. C., who will compete in the 3,000 meter steeple chase, Ben Owen, University of Pennsylvania, a candidate for pole vault honors, and Caleb F. Gates, Princeton, who will seek laurels in the hammer throw.

The athletes will not lack for proper training facilities while they are on the ocean. Every provision has been made for the athletes to keep themselves in good shape on the America. The liner has been fitted up with a running track encircling the superstructure; a boxing ring has been fitted up on one of the decks; a swimming tank has been installed; padded rings installed for the wrestlers and weightthrowers will be able to practice their swingings in a specially constructed ring.

TAGGING ALL THE BASES IN THE MAJOR LEAGUES

Long George Kelly continued his hitting streak, he got two singles out of four times up and the Giants defeated the Reds 4 to 1.

The Cards dropped a closed one to Brooklyn 4 to 3, Reuther being too good for them.

Earle Combs, young outfield star of the Yankees, may be out of the game for the rest of the season. He fractured his ankle at Cleveland. Incidentally the Yankees lost, 10 to 3.

The Browns broke their losing streak, defeating the athletics in 10 innings 9 to 8.

Under an avalanche of 21 hits, the Tigers smothered the Red Sox and won 10 to 4.

The White Sox defeated Washington 6 to four, after the Senators got away to a three run lead in the first.

KELLY ALL STARS WILL HAVE A BUSY WEEK

On Monday evening the Kelly All Stars will cross bats with the fast stepping Zu Zu team at McVey's Field. Hotaling will probably be Manager Schatzel's choice of hurlers for the All Stars.

On Tuesday evening at the Athletic Field at 6:15 the Kellys will play Manager Andy Wilbur's fast stepping Chevrolets.

On Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock the Kellys will play Manager McNally's Studebakers at East Kingston. This should prove a thriller as each team is desirous of taking the other into camp.

Red Sox Won Game.

The Poughkeepsie Red Sox beat Maggie Riley's All Stars Sunday, score 5 to 3. Battery for Red Sox, Schessler and McCarthy; for All Stars, Ruddy and Caldwell.

Won a Double Header.

Chapple Johnson's Stars won a double header from the Brooklyn Cuban Giants Sunday at Schenectady. The scores were 10 to 0 and 8 to 3.
